THE NEAR EAST RELIEF.

Responses are beginning to come in in answer to the appeal made to the people of Oconee for aid in the Near East Relief work. While not as generally responded to as might have been hoped for, still the beginning has been made, and it is hoped that others will realize the importance of immediate action. "What thou doest, do quickly." The situation in the Near East demands immediate attention.

A Suggestion.

One of the contributors to the fund through The Courier writes:

"Editor Keowee Courier:
"Enclosed find one dollar for the Armenians. It is not much, but I trust the Lord will bless the gift, even though it is small."

"Does Miss Tatham collect clothing for the Near East Relief? I have a good many useful things that would help make some child comfortable. Please answer through The Courier."

"If I may suggest, it seems to me that if Miss Tatham would make dates at different places, and give notice accordingly, she would meet with more success. People are not so poor that they can't help. It is just that they are indifferent and careless. If she would come to the Keowee school, and give notice beforehand, I feel sure she would meet with large success there."

"You can make this suggestion if you think proper to do so."

"A Friend."
Seneca, S. C., R. F. D.

We have been unable to communicate with Miss Tatham in regard to the collection of clothing. There is, however, a division of the Near East Relief work that handles the clothing collection work. We will be able by next week to give information in regard to the matters suggested by "A Friend."

Exhausted Fishermen Picked Up.

Charleston, April 29.—Three local fishermen, William Johnson, Israel Pringle and Frank Smith, were picked up off this coast to-day by the cutter Seminole, after the men had become completely exhausted, due to exposure in their small boat. They will survive, according to radio advice, and will probably soon be at home again with their families. They evidently ran into a bad storm, which with chilly weather, made their situation serious.

Grading for the Club Markets.

In order that the club markets of our State may continue to be a success, the producers must realize that the patrons want first-class products, properly graded and put up in the right kind of containers, at reasonable prices. In many localities we find that the growers who have not learned to produce truck crops efficiently are the ones who supply the markets. The more efficient truckers have an established trade and do not care to sell their goods beside a lot of inferior stuff. Consumers who patronize markets are entitled to the very best. It will take this to hold the trade.

Much more attention should be given to grading, packing and displaying of commodities offered for sale. Containers actually protect the commodities from dirt, and besides make them more attractive. Few people will buy butter, sausage, berries and many other such items if they have been exposed to the dust of the road and street. In so far as is practicable, the commodity should be carried from the farm to the market in a clean, attractive, convenient container.

Products properly graded and carefully prepared have a higher market value than those to which no attention has been directed.

The following quotation from a weekly summary gotten out by the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets, is significant of this fact: "Carrots—Receipts are moderate and the demand has been good all mostly $1.75 to $2.00 for washed, and $1.50 a box for dirty ones."

In all cases where products are put up in packages, any considerable variation below the quality of the top layer does not permit the goods to be considered as first quality. Where extreme "topping off" is practiced it is readily detected by experienced buyers, and the pack is considered dishonest.

Tentative grades, based on bulletins issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets:

Cherries—Sold in one-quart baskets by the crate of 32 baskets. Maturity: Well colored, but not over-ripe. Size: Normal average for variety. Qualities demanded: Free from leaves and trash, picked with stems on, and only one variety in a package.

Strawberries—Sold in one-quart baskets, in crates of 32 baskets. Maturity: Well ripened, practically an even color for the whole berry, firm, not over-ripe. Qualities demanded: Evenness of color of berries, uniformity of size, and freedom from dirt.

Radishes—Sold in bunches of 6, 8 or 12 radishes to the bunch, by the dozen bunches. Maturity: Fair sized roots, but sound. Size: Normal for variety. Qualities demanded: Freshness, brightness and crispness. Washed and uniform in size and color in the same bunch. Bunches are made up by tying just above the roots with twine or raffia.

In the Western Australian desert there are wells which yield water only at night.

British coal miners returning to work after the long strike found their hands so soft that they could not work.
